In this week's ACS Boss Talk, Bonnie Charpentier, Senior VP of Regulatory and Compliance at Cytokinetics, Inc., forecasts how clinical trials may change in the wake of the pandemic, argues for more federal R&D research spending, explains three critical career decisions, and (sort of) answers a question about her favorite ACS national meeting site.

Just graduated, and you realize you want to work in a field different from your academic training? You have come to the right place. ACS Career Consultant Samina Azad shares some suggestions to help make this shift.

More than 2,800 people died, and an additional 276,000 were injured in distracted driving accidents in the U.S. in 2018. Safety expert Ken Fivizzani talks about how to avoid distracted driving.
