Terms and Conditions of Use

ACS members who are in good standing are eligible for 25 complimentary activities from SciFinder and 50 complimentary downloads from ACS Publications for personal use through the ACS Member SciFinder and ACS Publications Benefit.

ACS Member SciFinder and ACS Publications Benefit Agreement

This ACS Member SciFinder and ACS Publications Benefit Agreement (“Agreement”) is made among American Chemical Society (“ACS”) operating through its Chemical Abstracts Service (“CAS”), ACS Publications division, and yourself (“Member”). This Agreement sets forth the terms under which access to CAS’s SciFinder solution and ACS Publications journals (collectively the “Products”) is provided to Member.

- I. License. ACS grants Member a personal, non-perpetual, non-exclusive, revocable, limited license to:
 - a. Use twenty-five (25) complimentary search activities in CAS’s SciFinder; and
 - b. Fifty (50) complimentary downloads from ACS Publications.

- II. Product Access.
 - a. Acceptable Use. When accessing the Products with the username given to Member as part of the ACS Member SciFinder and ACS Publications Benefit, Member agrees to use the Product and its content only for his or her own personal, private use. Examples of Acceptable use include:
 - An individual scientist to keep up with personal research interests
 - An individual student or educator, in pursuit of personal scholarly interests, when institutional access to the Products is not otherwise available
 - A job seeker to investigate research activities of a prospective employer
 - Subject to Section II.b. below, an individual sole proprietor or individual consultant to perform work in support of his or her general business needs.
 - b. Unacceptable Use. Uses that do not qualify as personal, private use and which are NOT permitted under this Agreement include, but are not limited to:
 - Use on behalf of or by a commercial, academic, or other institution in lieu of a properly licensed institutional subscription
 - Performing searches on behalf of third parties or systematically sharing search results or content, so as to circumvent properly licensed access by an institution or individual. Examples include: providing searching services as a paid contractor or consultant, pass-along sharing of content as part of providing professional services, dissemination of content in marketing or sales promotions, or direct sharing or other enablement of pass-along use for the benefit of unauthorized individuals or institutions
 - c. Information obtained or extracted from the Products may not be used in lieu of a properly licensed institutional subscription or to create derivative works without the express written permission of the ACS.
 - d. Member’s Product username and/or password may not be shared with any other person.
 - e. The CAS information Use Policies (<https://www.cas.org/legal/infopolicy>) and CAS Privacy Policy (<https://www.cas.org/legal/privacy>) are incorporated into this Agreement by reference, and are applicable to Member’s SciFinder use. ACS Copyright Information (<https://www.acs.org/content/acs/en/copyright.html>) and ACS Privacy Policy (<https://www.acs.org/content/acs/en/privacy.html>) are incorporated into this Agreement by reference, and are applicable to Member’s ACS Publications use.

III. Violations. If ACS or CAS determines that Member's use of the Products violates this Agreement, ACS or CAS may de-activate Member's Product username and revoke Member's rights to any unused search activities or downloading of content.

IV. General Provisions.

- a. Ownership. The copyright and title to all copyrightable property interests in or to SciFinder and ACS Publications including scientific information accessed using them are in and will remain with the ACS as owner. Member may not make any modifications, adaptations, enhancements, decompilations, changes or derivative works of SciFinder or of or to any whole or part of ACS Publications content.
- b.
